Isshoikka

IKEBANA · ONE LIFE, ONE FLOWER

Zen and flower, one taste: in the nature of a flower, we meet the nature of life.

Isshoikka began in 2015 to bring Zen into the practice of ikebana — the flower as a mirror in which we see ourselves. It now has 260K followers, and its workshops in Silicon Valley are warmly received.

Its founder, Xuan Guang, has practiced ikebana for more than a decade, studying and exhibiting many times at the Ikenobo headquarters in Kyoto, and holds the Ikenobo teaching license. Zen practice flows into every arrangement, opening a deep and quiet joy of being one with nature. Carried into daily life, this same “Zen and flower, one taste” becomes more ease, more coherence, more naturalness.

Silence

WORKSHOP · ISSHOIKKA

No phones. No talking.
No assumptions. No judgement.

Pick up the flower. Look. Cut. Place. Every moment is awareness; every stillness, a quiet joy.

> “In a space so quiet and so fluid, I felt the beauty of plants as they are. With every cut of a branch or leaf, I was feeling the plant itself. Arranging the material to follow the form of ikebana became a journey inward, asking what is natural and what is beautiful.” — Student C.

One Stem, the Whole World

IKEBANA · THREE WAYS OF SEEING

Impermanence · “Standing before the wind that scatters blossoms and strips the leaves, one may receive the seed of awakening.”

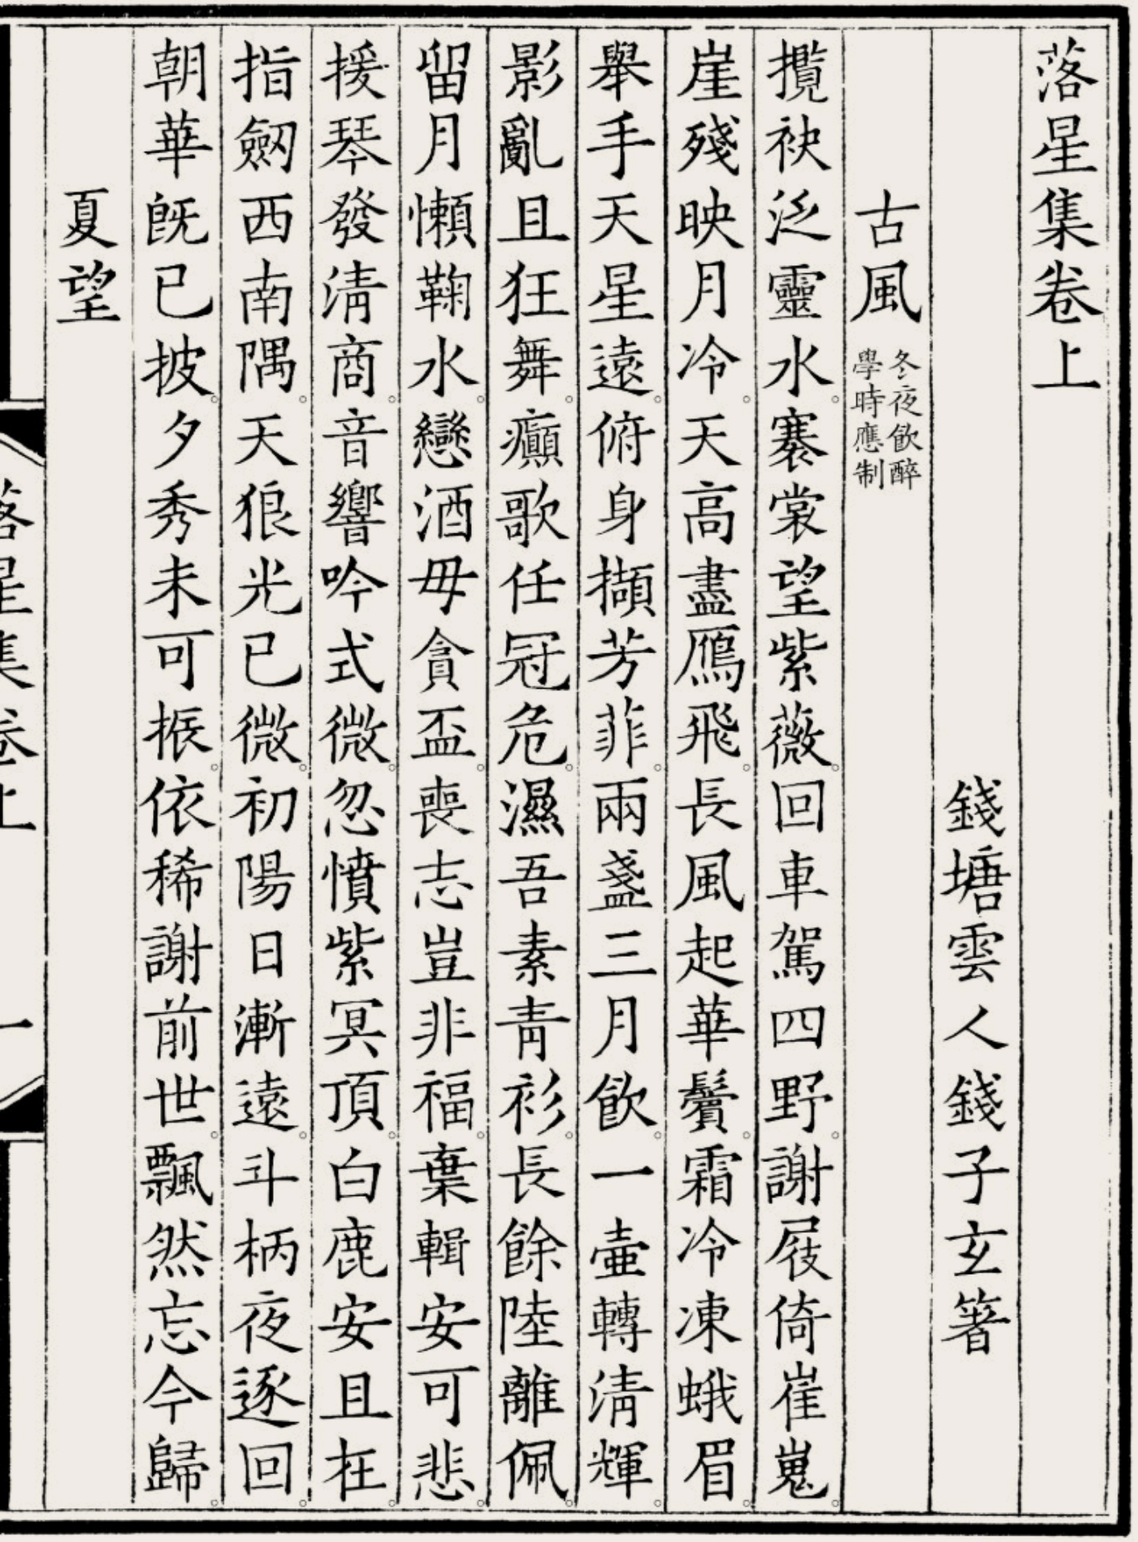

Nature · “Let yourself listen to the silent, hidden order of nature.”

Oneness · “The natural form is the root of expression; within it lies the ideal image of what we perceive.”

> “Observing and trimming with full attention, I found that a single material could show such different character. Along the way it opened many reflections on philosophy and on life.” — Student K.

Worldly ikebana seeks the pleasure of the senses;
transcendent ikebana seeks the resonance of feeling;
ultimate ikebana is the oneness of human and nature.

The nature of the flower is our own nature.

Falling Stars

POETRY · JIUGE POETRY SOCIETY

Stars fall to earth as words; words, refined, return as stars.

For more than twenty years Xuan Guang has written poetry whenever feeling arose — the turning seasons, seas becoming fields, mountains and rivers, grasses and flowers, sun, moon and stars. Not polished for its own sake, but written as the heart goes, in conversation with heaven and earth, often reaching beyond the dust of the world. Recent poems carry Zen into verse, tracing back to the source.

Over a thousand poems, collected in Falling Stars.

In 2022, co-founded the Jiuge Poetry Society at Google — gatherings online and in person, introductions to classical poetry, and the sharing of new work — reaching thousands of people.

Taixuan Guqin Society

MUSIC · GUQIN

Eyes follow the returning geese, hands sweep the five strings; at ease, the mind roams the great mystery.

The Taixuan Guqin Society began in 2022, to find in the sound of the qin the unity of heaven and humankind. We prize the plain over the ornate — music that is natural and unforced. In playing, we watch the movement of feeling within, and become one with nature.

Xuan Guang is especially devoted to reviving pieces from ancient tablature, and also plays the xiao and the piano. The society has performed widely at cultural gatherings across Silicon Valley and is invited each year by the City of Mountain View for its Lunar New Year celebration. It now has more than a hundred members.

Calligraphy & Seal Carving

BRUSH · PAPER · KNIFE · STONE

Stroke by stroke, square or round; nature as the teacher without, the mind as the source within.

Calligraphy is the meeting of paper and ink; seal carving, the clash of metal and stone. Between one stroke and the next, mind and nature become one.

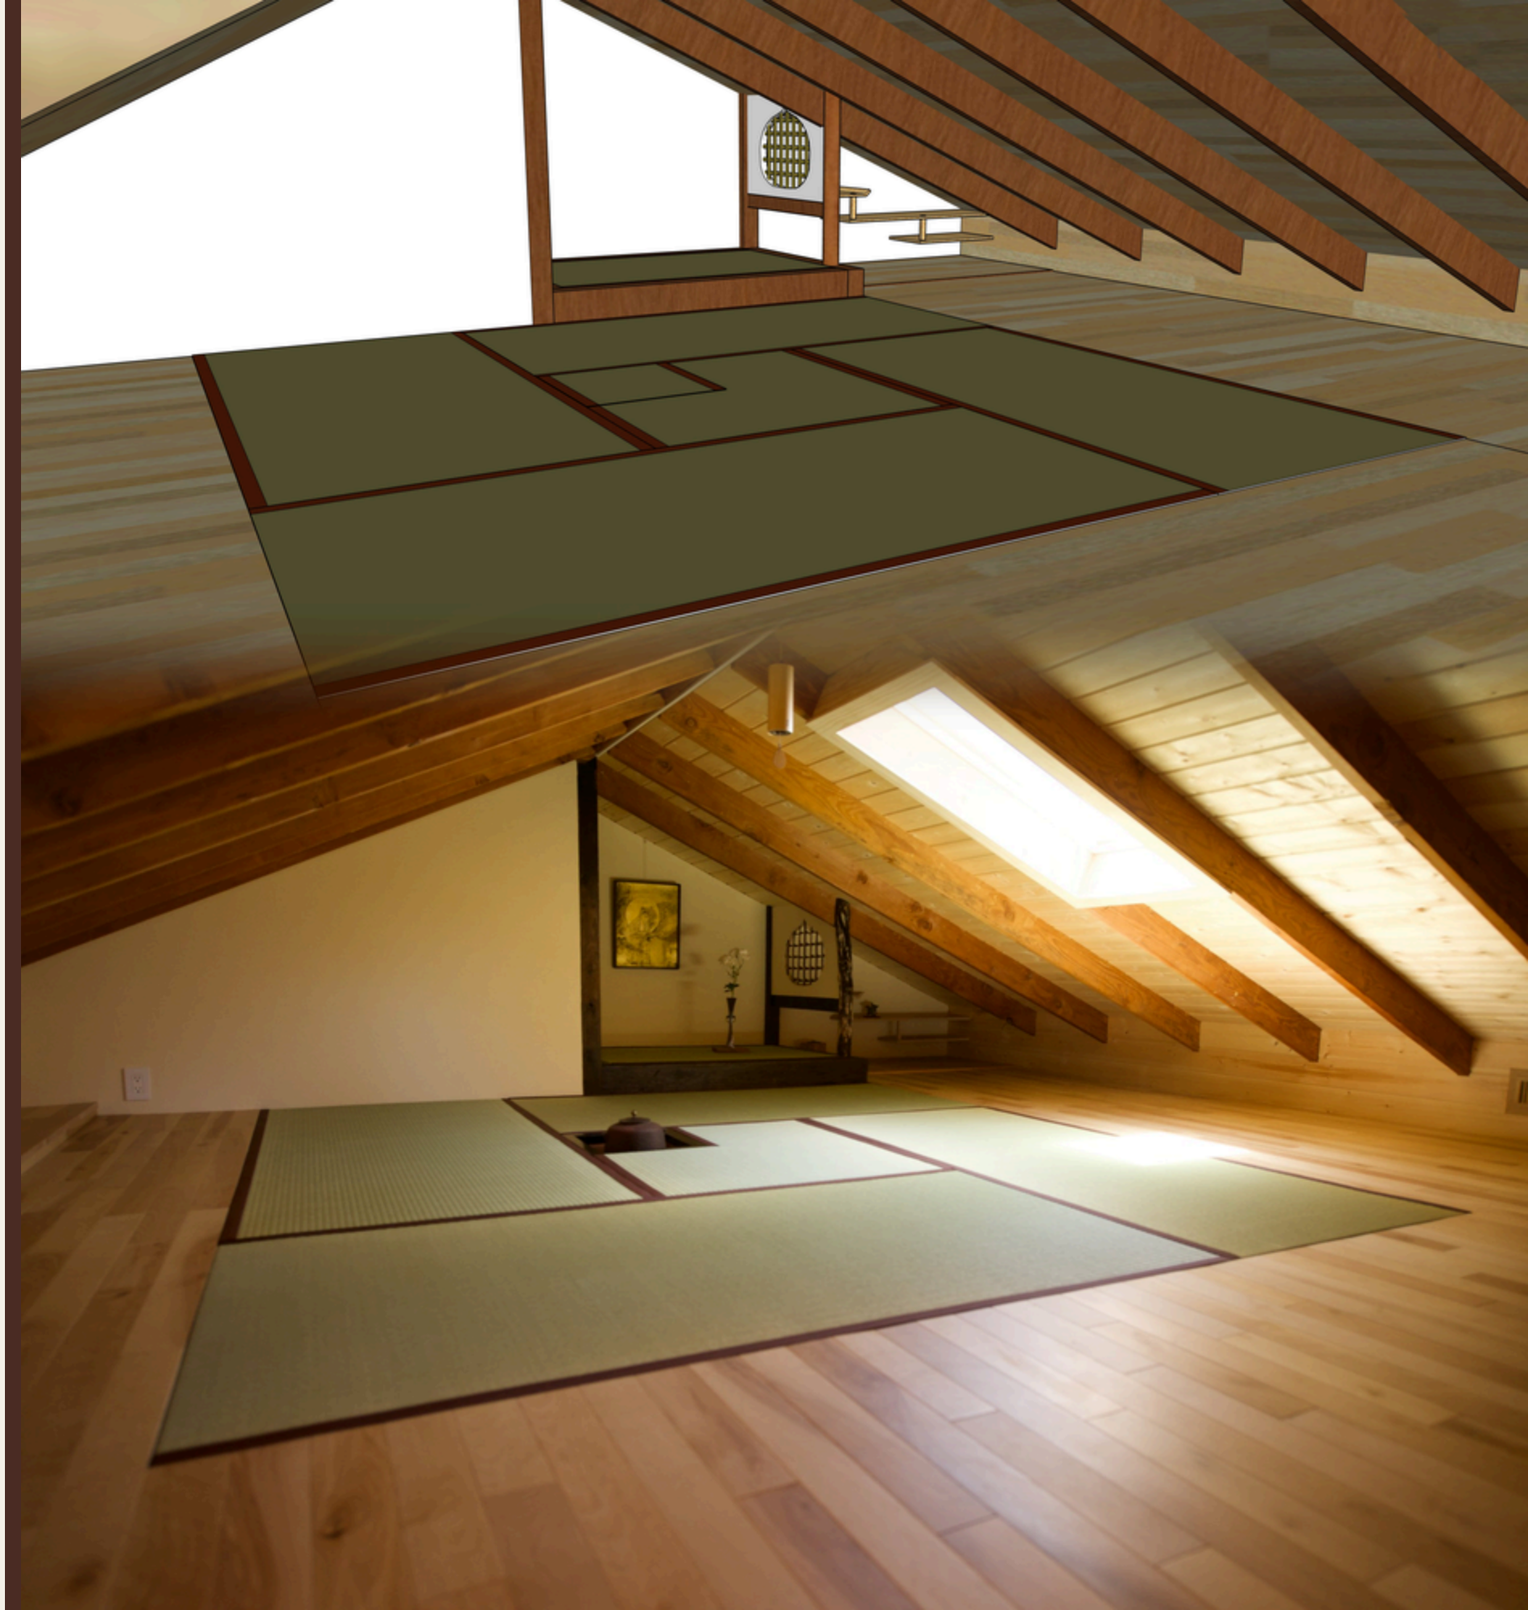

Raised among calligraphy, painting and seal carving at home, Xuan Guang writes in the regular and seal scripts and carves in the spirit of the natural. In the stillness of each stroke, polish and cleverness fall away, until only the purest nature of the mind remains.

Design & Creation

CERAMICS · WOODWORK · DESIGN · BUILDING

Through creation, we reach the source of life.

Xuan Guang also works in ceramics, origami, woodwork and bowl turning, with a particular feel for wabi-sabi design and for building it in the real world — finding, in the act of creating, a connection to the source of life.

Lumilab.AI

TECHNOLOGY

Frontier AI meets traditional wisdom, bringing inner exploration into daily life — so that each of us can be the master of the present moment.

We live amid material abundance and rapid technological progress, yet mental health keeps declining. Lumilab.AI was founded in 2025 to join the latest AI with traditional wisdom — helping people understand their inner system, above all to be aware of and to regulate their emotions, and to build a steadier, more coherent and happier life.

Energy Crystals

CRYSTAL

Through the essence of creation, feel the vibration of life.

Crystals are the condensed energy of heaven and earth. They echo the frequencies of the universe and carry a quiet spiritual inspiration. Their purity can also cleanse the soul and support the journey inward. Called by the crystals, Starlia draws on the purest energy points on earth to help kindred spirits find their soulmate.

Collected Objects

ANTIQUES · TEA WARE · VESSELS · CENSERS · SCROLLS

Beautiful souls outlast time; across a thousand years they bear witness to the permanence of life.

Objects are witnesses to seas turning into fields. Their makers are gone, yet their spirit and feeling flow on through what they made, still inspiring people a thousand years later. Look closely at what endures through inheritance, and you glimpse the permanence of life.

Starlia collects antiques rich in human feeling and warmth — tea ware, flower vessels, porcelain, ironware, censers, scrolls — and from these witnesses of time sows the seed of searching for what is imperishable within.

The essence of life is transcendent wisdom.

ZEN · PRACTICE

In 2023, by a turn of fate, Xuan Guang set out on the path of Zen practice. Everything learned before fell into place, and the direction of life became clear: to explore that perfect and complete inner source.

Starlia holds this: the essence of life is transcendent wisdom, expressed in every beautiful virtue. When we bring awareness, everything becomes a path toward that perfect essence. May everyone walk this path of light.
